

Schools OnLine

Annotations

...on Media

...on Music

...on Norway

...computers in society

...on Art

...on Gender

...Learner support

...Modelling

Add your own!!

...about the Annotators in Schools On Line

The World Wide Web is big (!) and there is a vast amount of content on it...

...this is not so unusual, we have more films, books, CDs etc than any one of us can manage too. We often rely on others for our selections. Our (growing) team of Schools On Line Annotators are enthusiasts for a particular curriculum area. Their pages offer links and annotations: places to visit, thoughts to challenge you before you 'go' and further thoughts to stimulate you when you come back. Simple but, we hope, useful.

Schools On Line is a UK site funded by the Department of Trade and Industry, located in Chelmsford, Essex, but around the world there are vast numbers of other sites. Our annotators are busy looking for sites that interest them, and through their annotations will we hope interest you.

Each annotator has a comments graphic at the top of their page; please use it if you have a useful contribution to offer or a link to suggest. Remember that Schools On Line and the Annotation pages are primarily intended for secondary (11-18) age pupils in UK schools.

Back to the top of this page

This page created and maintained by: Prof. Stephen Heppell